Don't Shield SPCA

The SPCA has become central to animal rescue in the area and Mr. Fitzpatrick is one of many who have questioned their policies, actions or attitude. Shielding the SPCA from scrutiny will not help the animals, in my opinion, nor will criticism of the SPCA hurt them. My visits to the Monterey SPCA motivated me to follow the press, and listen carefully to other people's opinions, and experiences. More information about pet rescue organizations should be available, not less. Please continue reporting.

Park Board Needs Director

At its regular monthly meeting, the Board of Directors of the Parks District accepted the resignation of Director David Salazar, effective August 31, 1999. Mr. Salazar has represented the City of Marina and northern Fort Ord since June 3, 1996. The Board agreed to appoint a replacement to fulfill Mr. Salazar's remaining term until the next District election in November, 2000. Anyone interested in filling this vacancy may obtain an application from the District by calling 659-4488. The application must be completed and received by the District office by 5:00pm on August 23, 1999. The Board will conduct interviews on Monday, August 30th and Tuesday, August 31st and make the appointment at its October 4, 1999, Meeting.

SPCA Offers TTouch Clinic

The SPCA of Monterey County is providing pet owners the opportunity to learn TTouch, a revolutionary approach to dog and cat training and health care that can correct behavioral problems, improve learning, help arthritic conditions, and deepen the connection with problem-free companion animals. Jodi Frediani, a local TTouch instructor, will conduct two clinics on Saturday and Sunday, August 21 and 22, from 9am to 4pm, at The SPCA Education Center on Highway 68, across from Laguna Seca. Participants should bring a sack lunch. Cost is $65 per person; $55 for SPCA members.

Reservations are required and attendance is limited to 12 participants for each clinic. The deadline for registration is Monday, August 16. In order to provide participants with hands on experience, each will be able to bring one dog. A portion of each clinic will be devoted to working with SPCA resident cats.

For those bringing a dog, reservations should be accompanied by proof of rabies vaccination, as well as the dog's breed, sex, age, and problems to be addressed. Aggressive dogs will need special clearance before the clinic date.

For reservations and information, call The SPCA of Monterey County at 373-2631 or 422-4721, ext. 236

Sheriff's Department Hits the Web

Sheriff Gordon Sonn  enters the Internet world with the Monterey County Sheriff's Department web page.

Sheriff Sonn  recognized that a web page on the Internet offered tremendous potential to promote Sheriff's Department employment opportunities to the greatest number of applicants as well as give visitors an insight into the many interesting and varied duties within the Sheriff's Department.

In the short time the web site has been on-line, the Recruiting Unit has received over 33 application requests including some from Alaska, Delaware and Texas. Interested candidates can find the job description, requirements, a down load application form and even e-mail the Recruiting Unit.

The web page includes other sections describing the duties and responsibilities of different divisions within the department, and posts phone numbers and contact names for different units, and links to other law enforcement web sites. Visitors can use the on-line Tip Line to report suspicious or criminal activity, or neighborhood concerns and needs.

Also posted in the web page are Crime Prevention tips, news releases and special announcements; e-mail address; schedules for upcoming events and activities; and general information about Monterey County.

SPCA Volunteer Orientation & Training

The SPCA of Monterey County is offering an orientation for new volunteers, as well as two volunteer workshops, during the month of August. Orientation for new volunteers is scheduled for Saturday, August 21, from 1 until 4 pm. This session is required for all new volunteers and includes a tour of the facility and an overview of the

WHY SAVE WATER?

Monterey Peninsula residents lead the state in conserving water. But in 1995 the State ordered Monterey Peninsula to find a new source for 69% of the water we draw from Carmel Valley. Water that local residents have relied on for 70 years.

Until a new source is in place, we're working hard to help you conserve. But conservation itself will never be enough to meet the State's order.

We've studied 73 alternatives for a new water supply, seeking the most reliable and thrifty solution that also protects the environment. Until a new supply is assured, we're all required to reduce water use.

WHAT IF WE DON'T?

The State already imposed one fine of $168,000. Each customer may pay these fines through monthly water bills.

We all live under the threat of strict rationing and more fines if we don't reduce water use until a reliable new supply is created.

WATER WORKS!

In these dry summer months you'll see advertisements pointing out why we need to ensure a reliable water supply.

We hope you'll join us by using water wisely in a spirit of goodwill as we work together to find a long term, reliable water supply for Monterey Peninsula.

Carmel Valley's 10th Annual FIESTA was a great success!

Golf Got Fiesta Off To Swinging Start

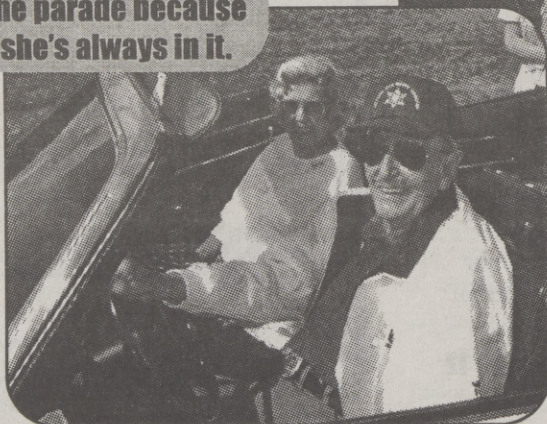

One hundred-forty-four golfers with 20 sponsored youth golfers and several celebrities including Jim Tunney, Peter Funt, Don Jordan, Hunter Finnell, Ken White and Peter Smith turned out for the second version of the Fiesta Celeb-Am tournament at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort.

According to tournament director, Bruce Michels, the improbable happened. Village locals Russ Wilks, Ken Van Hagen, and David Cummings, ably supported by CHS graduate Eric Struve, were outright winners in a tight contest. However, the real winners will be the Monterey County Free Libraries who will receive the proceeds of the tournament.

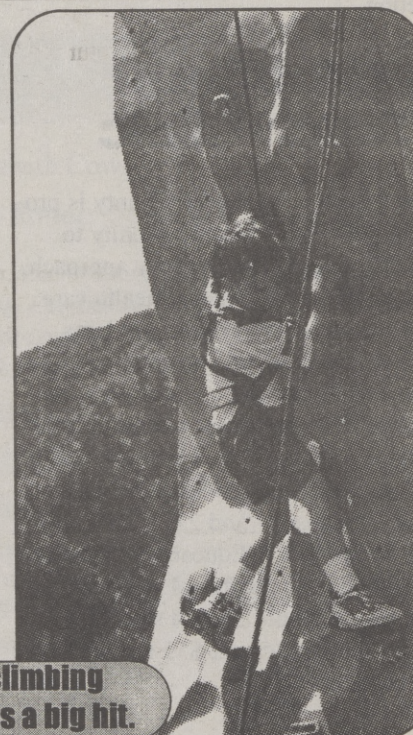

Michels, when Fiesta Chairman, had coined "come for the sun, stay for the fun." Sun was plentiful and it was after dark that Michels and his staff were finally able to end the fun.

Dodie and Roger Williams. Dodie says she's never seen the parade because she's always in it.

Wall-to-Wall People, Gridlock And 'No Vacancy' Signs R Us

A BELOVED Carmel Valley lady, who shall remain anonymous, calls attention to an item in the Monterey Daily Gaffe asking the public to donate snazzy pictures of the area for a brochure to help show more tourists what the area is like.

"I wonder if they're seeking realism, or just hype?" asks the B.C.V.L.

"IF they really want to show it like it is," she continued, "I hope someone sends them a picture or two of the traffic jams we have every weekend, like a shot of the cars queued up for miles at the intersection of Highway 1 and Rio Road coming back from Big Sur.

"Or one of the cars lined up on Ocean Avenue clear back to Highway 1 waiting to go bumper-to-bumper into Carmel.

"AND what about a picture of that remodeled Chevron station on Rio Road near Highway 1? They've put it on a built-up pedestal and added a mini-mart so it can be seen for miles around. Folks from Barstow, or Battle Mountain, Nev., would feel right at home!

"Unfortunately, it's the last impression visitors receive of the Carmel area before heading down to Big Sur country on Highway 1.

"SURELY these are things that prospective tourists would like to know about."

THE pictures are being sought by the Monterey Peninsula Visitors and Convention Bureau and the Monterey County Travel and Tourism Alliance which will jointly produce the brochure.

There are a couple of ground rules you need to know about before you send in a picture:

1 - You're DONATING your picture. You aren't going to be paid a nickel.

2 - (Quoting the Daily Gaffe) "Neither slides nor photos will not be returned." Okey-dokey!

BY THE WAY... This column has wondered for a long time whether the aforementioned Visitors and Convention Bureau and the Travel and Tourism Alliance recognize any saturation point for tourism.

I mean, is there any point at which these two fine organizations would say:

"HEY, that's enough tourists! Close the gates. They're affecting the quality of life here far too negatively now!"

We ask that question in all seriousness. Is there a limit to what the Peninsula - in fact, the entire area - can stand?

WOULD the two tourist recruiting groups put the brakes on at two million visitors a day? Five million? A billion?

Or do they feel that no matter how crowded, how chaotic and miserable life becomes for residents, there's always room to shoehorn in a few hundred thousand more tourists so the corner hamburger joint and the hilarious T-shirt shop can score a few extra bucks?

PLEASE, V.C.B. and T.T.A., provide an answer for us! Is there any limit? If so, where would you draw the line? We would sincerely appreciate your reply.

TODAY'S QUOTE... Tennis Star Pete Sampras using a golfing analogy to describe (insult?) super-thrush Barbra Streisand:

"She's what I call a pitching wedge. She looks good from about 150 yards away." (A backhand cut shot, or a hard slam?)

NOW WE'RE COOKING! ...Talk about an embarrassment of riches!

We chronicled here last week how little old Carmel Valley Village is suddenly becoming a hotbed (make that a hotplate) of outstanding restaurants, what with White Oak Grill, Summer House, Sole Mio, etc., already here and Bernardus Lodge, The Ridge at Robles Del Rio, and Taste on the way.

BUT still another one that promises to be top drawer is reportedly preparing to open in the building recently vacated on Carmel Valley Road at Pilot Road by Thai Bistro (next to the library).

It will be a venture, we're told, by Walter Georis, a partner in the standout Casanova restaurant in Carmel!

AND to complement the on-the-way restaurants and the comparatively new ones are old standbys like Plaza Linda Mexican, Will's Fargo, and the Running Iron, among others.

Georis, incidentally, has a wine tasting room just around the corner and up Pilot Road a half-block from the location where he plans to put the new eatery.

GOOD GRIEF, what's next? Will Ventana, Sardine Factory, Fandango, and Kincaid's Bistro open satellite restaurants up here, too?

Or how about Stillwater Bar & Grill or Cafe Fina? We could use a seafood house, for sure.

DON'T laugh. The fever is contagious!

PERSISTENT HUMOR causing jaws to drop all over the Peninsula:

That Tom Oliver will be retrofitted by the four new owners of Pebble Beach to RUN the company again!

WE stress - there's no confirmation.

San Franciscans and many, many other people throughout Northern California, for the great and lovable old San Francisco Chron will soon be but a memory.

What happened is that a majority of the descendants of M.H. deYoung, who founded the paper as the Daily Dramatic Chronicle in 1865, felt that their substantial quarterly dividends were not enough and decided to kill the golden goose.

THEY did that last week when they sold the venerable (but frisky) Chron to the Hearst Corp., publisher of the staggering San Francisco Examiner, which has been in the Intensive Care Unit for the last several years.

Oh the Hearst folks said all the hackneyed things made infamous by Scripps-Howard and Knight-Ridder in such instances - "We won't change a ting" ... "Nobody will be fired" ... "Everything will be hunky-dory, peachy keen, smooth sailing" ... "Blah, blah, blah" ...

BUT mark my words, the genuine dear old Chron is a corpse. And just two-and-a-half years after its most deservedly celebrated staff member, Herb Caen, himself, caught the big bus and sent the city into mourning in February of 1997.

The Chron, with a daily circulation of 482,000, was the largest of the country's remaining independently-owned newspapers and the 12th largest paper in the country.

LOOK for Hearst to either turn it into a sedative or to trick it up like the erratic Examiner or the irrelevant Monterey Daily Gaffe.

Herb Caen is surely spinning in his grave. (He hated the Examiner, which he called Brand Ex.)

THE CHRON is dead. R.I.P.

AS if the foregoing were not gloom-inducing enough, along comes Diana Black of Pacific Grove to alert us that the mail order companies (Bloomingdale's, etc.) are now hawking Christmas merchandise!

Whoop-de-do. And joy. Only 114 shopping days until.

BUT on second thought, I guess we have to give those worthies credit. For look at it this way:

They held off until August this year!

BUMPER STICKER spotted by Janine Ross of Carmel Valley on the back of a green Toyota Camry on Saturday of last week:

"Back Off! Postal Worker Driving."

Janine thought it was hilarious until the driver got out. He was wearing a postman's uniform!

(WE asked her, but she said no, he didn't look a bit like Cliff Klavin.)

COURAGE! There's just GOT to be better news next week.

SPARE CHANGE by Barbra Alexander

Tax Refund or Y2K Obstacle

There is simply no sugarcoating the dilemma. Some ninety million taxpayers will not get their refunds unless the IRS, that bastion of modern technological ingenuity, gets their computers fixed in time. Whom are they kidding? This agency is having enough trouble learning to become the 'kinder and gentler' Internal Revenue Service.

Regardless, the General Accounting Office has confirmed our worst fears. Your tax refund is definitely at risk. It could be lost, delayed or improperly reduced. Whatever the case, some eighty-three million taxpayers could find themselves bogged down in quite a bureaucratic meltdown, just trying to get their refund.

Those of you who understand the concept of withholdings more than likely also comprehend the concept of refunds. You will not have a problem because you will have zeroed out your tax account and thereby have precluded any chance of a refund being due to you. According to Money Hot-Line guest Daniel J. Pilla, those among you who still view a refund as a gift from your government out of the kinder, gentler dimple of its huge bureaucratic heart may have a difficult time collecting your gift.

The author of ten books relating to taxes and the governmental beast, Pilla is best known as the nation's premier defender of taxpayer rights. His work is consistently praised by the likes of CNN, CBS, CNBC and his books are regularly recommended by the Wall Street Journal, Family Circle and Investors Business Daily. He has been a tax policy consultant to four presidential candidates and the National Commission on Restructuring the IRS.

One of his suggestions designed to zero out the average tax return so that you are not at the mercy of an agency expecting the Y2K bug to scramble its computers is to take your expected refund now. What he means is that statistically the average tax refund if you live in the monetary slipstream of the Middle Kingdom is $1,500. He urged the audience to up the deductions on their W-4 immediately. That would mean that you receive more money now, and when you file your return, you should come out just about even.

"Another fact," according to Pilla, "is that very few taxpayers actually write off all they should. Even the people preparing your taxes rarely encourage you to take advantage of all the available deductions. No one," he continues, "is obligated to send the IRS a single penny more than they need to, yet almost everyone who receives a W-2 overpays every year." The reason he says is fear.

Couple this fear of the IRS with the fact that the Tax Code is about seventeen thousand pages long and that nobody reads it until they have something specific to look up, and the result is you are probably overpaying just like he said. It seems to me that it would be great to get in the IRS' pocket for a change, instead of them leaving you with just spare change in yours. What do you think?

You might find it interesting to note that according to the General Accounting Office the IRS has not passed their own audit for the past several years. Gee, that means the bureau whose audits we, as taxpayers are so afraid of, cannot pass an audit by their own regulatory group, the GAO. What do you suppose that means? Wouldn't it be fun to be a mouse in the GAO corridors listening to the remarks being made about the native intelligence of the Big-Bully Agency?

So where will your tax refund be in January 2000? The United States General Accounting Office says the IRS is behind in solving its Y2K computer problems and if its efforts continue to be unsuccessful, the impact on millions of taxpayers could include everything from tax notices to erroneous refunds. Should you want to take protective action you might want to read Pilla's new book, 'How to Double Your Tax Refund'.

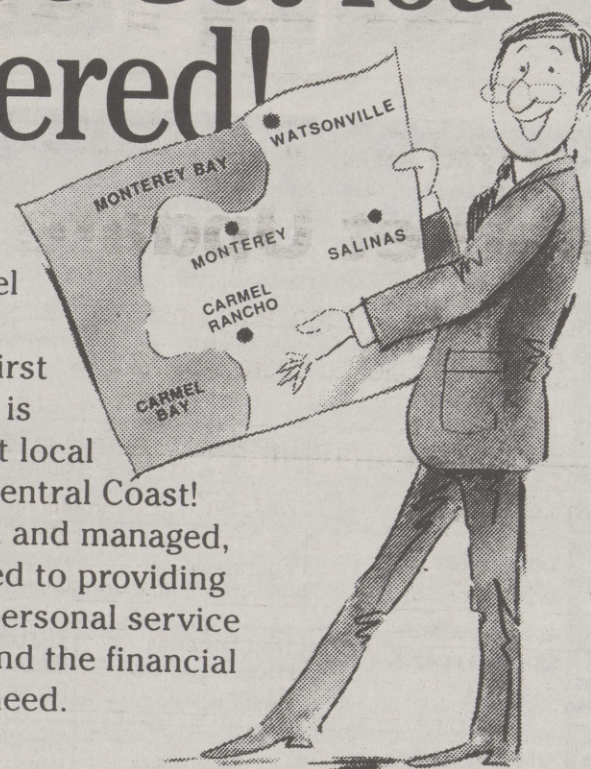

Of course, this could also be the year to start filling out your return with Roman Numerals. Will you take action? After all, the only thing you have to lose is more of your money.

AROUND TOWN

with ELIZABETH Cowley

The popular and handsome 16 year-old Storm Nilson returns to BlueFin in Storm Warning this Friday. The peninsula is not the only place where Storm's talents are appreciated, he's heading for Santa Cruz's Moe's Alley Saturday. Back at BlueFin, reggae fun will be the ticket Saturday with Jonah and the Whalewatchers. There is no cover at BlueFin and shows start at 9p.m.

Starz strives to scare you senseless this Friday the 13th with a double header of Foamscape and Notion. I believe it was the venerable Matt Heimbold who lovingly described Notion as the best in alternative roadhouse rock. Foamscape has been working diligently to complete their debut CD while simultaneously gigging for pancake dough. Taking a hiatus from their Mexican Cantina tour, this will be Foamscape's debut at Starz and they will be featuring tunes from their aforementioned upcoming CD. And... rumor has it fashion plate "hell-rod" Wilson may actually change his shirt for this gig - don't miss it.

Saturday at Starz guitar masters Johnny Moezzi and Justin Saunders perform in The Filth.

You know them, you love them and they're back - The Uninvited will do their thing at Long Bar tonight (Thursday). The Uninvited continue to pack whatever house they're playing because they're fun. They possess those other rock essentials like being cute and playing instruments but the key is the rabidity The Uninvited bring to the party. So douse yourself with beer, wear your pogo shoes and get yourself to Long Bar tonight.

The Uninvited play Long Bar tonight - Thursday

Viva has raided the San Francisco band pool for your Saturday night entertainment bringing Fall of Olive billed as acid jazz/rock and Continental billed as SF free form. There's no cover charge so why not check it out.

Care to partake of the forbidden dance? Salsa lovers and those wishing to learn of the forbidden dance must lambada their way to Baja Cantina this Saturday for, you guessed it, Salsa Nite with salsa band Oasis. Baja Cantina in Carmel Valley is known for its very festive parties and this should be no exception with live salsa music, salsa dancing and salsa eating. The festivities begin at 5p.m. while it's still hot and sunny, and will continue until 10p.m.

Reservations are recommended; call 625-BAJA.

So who were the big round one winners of the Monterey County Fair All Star Band Competition? In the rock category The Amazon Mollies and InBalance took the prize. The Unknown Jeromes and Pankind took the acoustic category on Sunday and Dakota and Black Diamond won the country competition. With all the veteran bluesmen in Monterey it was two teen bands that won the blues category -

The Blue Tones and Blue Nova. To watch the category showdowns be sure and get to the Monterey County Fair August 18-20 and the final winner will be chosen on Saturday August 21 where category winners will compete against each other for the best of the best all star band.

The disgruntled band contingent has been rumbling about the fix being in but as an esteemed judge I can assure you no bribes have been offered. But if anyone is interested I like tulips, black leather, cookie dough and cashmere. Bribes may be sent to...

ON THE FOOD FRONT with Don Bowen

Don Finds Pasta Heaven in Carmel Valley a visit to Sole Mio

The beautiful wife looked at me over cocktails. "You have a funny glint in your eye..." she said.

"I have a craving," I answered.

"A craving for what prey tell?"

"The noodle," I replied.

"You're strange," she remarked.

Ten minutes later we had the top down on the Dusenbergs and were roaring out Carmel Valley Road to visit my favorite Italian at Sole Mio restaurant in Carmel Valley. We have known Dominico Vastarella for probably 15 years through all of the years as a waiter and manager of some of the better restaurants in Carmel. In those days everyone knew Domenico the dashing Italian, zipping around town on his red Vespa waving to the pretty girls. Now he is married to lovely Sole and he has become a family man and a very successful restaurant operator. He has always been an extraordinary chef and I fondly remember some of the wonderful creations he used to whip up for Judy and me when he was working at the Village Corner in Carmel. We don't see him in Carmel that often anymore, but when we do he is in his sleek new black Jaguar convertible with the top down looking very prosperous.

We pulled up to the front of Sole Mio and there, parked in front, was the beat-up old red Vespa. No sleek black Jaguar. Inside I asked Dominico what happened to the Jag and he replied that it was parked in back. He parks the Vespa in front for an Italian tough. It brought back memories of the gray Grand Sport Vespa I used to have when we lived in San Francisco. This was the monster of Vespas, big and heavy. I remembered the rainy night I stopped at a cocktail party on top of Telegraph Hill and afterwards tried to maneuver the Vespa down a steep, wet hill and went head over heels down the hill. The landing at the bottom of the hill knocked my shoes off, ruined my suit and banged up the Vespa a bit but I still managed to drive it home.

Nick, my favorite waiter brought out wine and my wind-blown mother-in-law

(she had been in the rumble seat) ordered Scaloppine Di Maiale... pounded thin sliced of pork tenderloin sautéed in white wine with mushrooms ($15.25). Judy ordered the Pollo Parmigiana... lean breast of chicken, topped with mozzarella and pomodoro sauce ($14.75). I had the special, which was Cannelloni, and it was sensational! Judy let me try her chicken and it too was excellent, as was mother-in-law's pork.

Other items I will return to try include wide pasta with meatballs ($12.75)... pasta with fresh clams, extra virgin olive oil and pan roasted garlic ($15.25)... fresh crab ravioli with sundried tomatoes, arugula, coral shrimp, lobster cream sauce ($17.75)... fruits of the sea "pesca-tore" garlic tomato sauce and basil ($17.75).

Dominico also offers a swordfish sautéed with fresh lemon, capers and white wine ($16.75), large prawns sautéed in extra-virgin olive oil with fresh lemon, garlic and Italian parsley ($16.75) and there are three veal dishes and three chicken dishes, dine only as Dominico can do them!

After a delightful dinner in the colorful Italian atmosphere Dominico has created he gave me a tour of the kitchen and the large new private party room he has added in the rear. Wonderful Italian décor and furnishings and bound to be a successful addition to what I consider one of the best Italian dinner houses on the Coast! There is an outdoor patio in front and Dominico has added another patio in the rear which will be delightful.

Driving home my wife said... "And how was the Noodle?" "Great," I replied, "and everything was satisfactory on your side of the table?" "Of course. But I was disappointed about one thing. We were at an Italian restaurant and I didn't get pinched!"

Sole Mio is located on Del Fino in Carmel Valley Village serving lunch and dinner Tuesday-Sunday. Call 659-9119 for reservations.

Sheriff's Citizen's Academy Forming

Monterey County Sheriff Gordon Sonné has announced the next session of the Sheriff's Citizen's Academy. There will be 12 class meetings starting on Sept. 2, 1999 and concluding on Nov. 18, 1999. This will be the 10th Academy.

All classes will be held on Thursday evenings from 6:00-9:00pm at the Sheriff's Department main office, 1414 Natividad Road, Salinas. Class size is limited to 25 qualified participants and there is no cost.

This program has graduated over 275 people who have received classes in a broad range of law enforcement areas, to include: Patrol, Investigations, SWAT, Firearm Simulation training, K-9 demonstrations, Jail Operations, Coroner's Division, and a wide variety of other departmental activities.

Those who wish to apply, or would like further information, should contact Deputy Bill Cassara (Academy Coordinator) at the Sheriff's Department, telephone (831) 647-7702.

Application/information packets will be available at all three Sheriff's stations in Salinas, Monterey and King City, as well as the Community Field Offices in Carmel, Castroville, Pajaro, Aromas and San Ardo.

I've just written my first, as a "once-a-weeker", to Sam Farr, suggesting that he consider introducing legislation setting up a Federal Department of Animal Affairs...I said, "It could take care of the many animal rights and cruelty issues that we now have to attack piecemeal...like the overpopulation of dogs and cats...our wildlife is being killed from airplanes, and helicopters, and snowmobiles on public lands...the cruelties in circuses are horrific, as are the idiot experiments being done on thousands of chimpanzees."

"I think a federal agency would be very helpful, and a saving to the public, financial and emotional, to say nothing of the environment."

So, if we keep our promise (and I'm assuming we will), and express our needs and opinions we become part of what Professor Noam Chomsky calls "the ultimate weapon"... and we just may win!

Glory Hallelujah!

WHAT'S NEXT? by Mel Vercoe

The Race is On

My long-heralded novel, The Return of the Grapes of Wrath, with our homeless hero couple, maybe Joel and Suzie, living in a 74 Datsun with no transmission, hoping that some day Suzie's mother will give them bus fare to go to Kansas, where Joe might get a job milking cows, will just have to wait, until we find out how this Presidential election crisis turns out.

We now have over a hundred times the population we had for our first election, but we suddenly have a terrible shortage of capable candidates who are expert magicians, able to keep everybody happy at the same time.

Making a campaign speech in a missile factory is easy. Just promise to help Taiwan get out from under China, but if three guys in the back row are just about ready to retire, and even a relatively small World War Three will take a lot of their retirement, then maybe all three of them might vote for some other guy.

Diana Whitesides

Thank you all from the bottom of my mending heart for the kind words, hugs, and commingled tears over the last month. As all animal lovers know, time will heal and I will cry less at the thought of us all losing such a sweet pup. I feel I should apologize for any ungracious moments. Some days I can find the words and other days they fail me.

I was overwhelmed by the love and contributions I received from friends at the school district, Thomas' gym, and Carol Vallaire's clients. I am actively searching for a new pup. There will never be another Ocho but I will share a new mascot with the kids on the team and at school who lost a "little brother".

Thank you for loving Ocho and I so well.

CV Seniors

The Carmel Valley Senior's program (for those 55 and older) will host an afternoon with Lynne Iantorno, a Carmel Valley Artist and owner of Village Garden from 11a.m. to 2p.m. this Monday, August 16, at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

You will receive a terra cotta flower pot and be able to choose from an assortment of colorful bedding plants to make a 'color pot' to take home with you. There is no charge to participate, bring a sack lunch - beverages and dessert will be provided. RSVP to 659-3983.

Y2K

The Carmel Valley Y2K preparedness group will host its second meeting on Tuesday, August 17th from 7-8p.m. at the Carmel Valley Library. Eight concerned citizens gathered last month to create a plan in case Y2K creates problems for Carmel Valley residents.

According to the group coordinator, Anna Forman, regardless of the Y2K outcome, it is important to strengthen ties with neighbors and those Carmel Valley residents who do not have a support network. For more information call Anna Forman at 659-3533.

Cook-Off Date Set

The Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce will sponsor its sixth annual "Great Bowls of Fire" Chili Cook-Off on Monday, September 20, from 5 to 8pm at the Holman Ranch, just east of Carmel Valley Village. Admission is $15 per person and includes chili sampling, a salad bar, and corn bread. Also featured will be Margaritas and a beverage bar. Live music will be provided by the ever-popular Chachagua Playboys.

The Cook-Off provides a wide selection of homemade chili recipes prepared and presented by Carmel Valley Chamber members. All recipes are original and the competition is passionate.

Co-chairs for this year's event are Chamber Director Sue Peccianti and Chamber Executive Director Ann Olivier. The names of the judges and entrants will be announced at a later date.

"The 'Great Balls of Fire' Chili Cook-Off is an evening of good food, live music, dancing, a unique silent auction, and just plain fun," said Cook-Off Co-Chair Sue Peccianti, owner of Mail Boxes, Etc., in Mid Valley. "This major event is the Chamber's only fund-raiser and proceeds help fund activities in support of local businesses and our community for the entire year."

For more information or to purchase tickets, please call Chili Cook-Off Co-Chair Ann Olivier at the Chamber office, (831) 659-4000.
